Orchestrating Digital Risk Protection

Automate key tasks associated with triaging and understanding digital threats

As organizations continue to grow their digital presence, their security teams have to deal with exponentially more threats. To address them, security operations and analyst teams need access to details about threats and their associated infrastructure and then tools necessary to block and eliminate them.

RiskIQ provides access to internet-scale intelligence and insight into the connections between assets on the internet, giving security operations and analyst teams the information they need to understand suspicious activity and indicators of compromise (IOC) and identify the tactics, techniques, and procedures of adversaries.

Phantom automates and orchestrates incident response processes based on event enrichment provided by RiskIQ. Using Phantom playbooks, security operations teams can create custom, automated workflows to trigger IOC investigation, block threats and related infrastructure, and understand ownership of suspicious infrastructure.

Together, the integration between RiskIQ data and Phantom's orchestration platform transforms your security operations team by:

- Reducing the number of tools required to triage and mitigate risk
- Optimizing operations and analysis processes within and between teams
- Automating the decision making and enrichment processes with no additional resources

Fig 1 - The above picture is showing a phantom playbook that is utilizing RiskIQ to enrich information that was initially observed by the organization's internal security products. The playbook performs analytics and data enrichment utilizing RiskIQ internet data sets. This allows for decisions to be made and the appropriate actions to be taken.

Conclusion

Phantom allows for institutional knowledge to be preserved and automated. Seasoned analysts can create playbooks that utilize RiskIQ integration for their organization with confidence that junior analysts will perform security investigations more efficiently and at a higher skilled level.
